Happy New Year to All

WHY IS YOUR HOME BUILT OF WOOD?

BECAUSE WOOD IS:

Strong—Weight for weight it is stronger than any other building material.
Durable—Properly used, it lasts for generations.
Easily Worked—It is shaped and joined with simple tools.
Impervious—Neither wind nor water will go through it.
A Non-Conductor to Heat—It is warm in winter and cool in summer.

Attractive—For interior finish, wood is unrivalled in its soft coloring and vitality.
Wholesome—Wood is sanitary, healthy, not noisy, and is of pleasing and friendly appearance.
Cheap—Abundant, accessible, easily handled, manufactured and erected, it is the cheapest of all building materials.

THESE QUALITIES ALSO MAKE WOOD THE BEST MATERIAL FOR BARN AND OTHER FARM BUILDINGS.

FARM BUILDING PLANS

The British Columbia Forest Service is publishing a series of bulletins on farm buildings, the plans for which, the bills of material, and instructions how to build, were prepared by the College of Agriculture of the University of Saskatchewan. The Forest Service has supplied information concerning the best wood to use.

Any of the following bulletins in which you are interested will be mailed free upon application to the Chief Forester, Victoria, B.C. Complete reference sets will also be supplied to lumber dealers on request:

After the parliamentary comment on the Ford expedition it can no longer be said that Englishmen are unable to understand an American joke.

Constantine appears to still be classed with the holdouts. But he may sign up, same's all the rest do, when he forces the best terms he can.

The members of the Ford party left their finger prints behind so that in case of accident there might be no difficulty in identifying their bodies.

Not a bad idea at all, for they do not appear to have made any footprints in Europe.

General Joffre should be chided for delaying the publication of his opinion that the European war would last two years longer.

Had he made the statement a little earlier he might have saved Henry the price of a large ship and a lot of pilgrim food.

Henry Ford returns home from his peace trip, having accomplished—nothing!

No victor's laurels to deck his brow! No martial music to greet him on his triumphant return home, playing "See the conquering peace hero comes!"

But Henry got a whole lot of advertising, and, perhaps, after all, that was what he wanted.

If so, he paid a pretty stiff price for his advertising.

The Advance would have given him a special rate, considering the total amount of cash paid in a lump sum.

Then, too, Henry may have sold his patent submarine for a good figure.

There is a movement on foot imposing an embargo on shipments of war munitions from the United States.

Does Uncle Samuel scent danger in view of a rumored diplomatic rupture from United States with Vienna.

Or is it another "Made-in-Germany" plot?

A WAR-SCARED HERO

CAPT. A. N. MARTIN

Tells Some of Experiences at Front

Capt. A. N. Martin, of the famous Fighting Tenth, amongst which battalion were some of the boys of this district, who have done such splendid work at the front, addressed a fair-sized audience in Chinook on Tuesday evening, both in the interests of the patriotic fund and for recruits for the 89th, Col. Naysmith in charge.

At the outset, Capt Martin told of the good work being done through the patriotic fund, which was worthy of our best support, and to which too much money cannot be given. It was doing a noble as well as a very necessary work.

Capt. Martin told in a quiet manner some of his thrilling experience of the hardships and the stern realities of the present war. It was no picnic. He was glad to say that no Canadian showed cowardness or shirked his duty, but instead, exhibited exceptional bravery and an indomitable will to do their bit in smashing the foe. He told in a very vivid manner of the bayonet charge of the famous Fighting Tenth that has made that charge immortal; of Capt. Boyle's original phrase which preceded the charge, on fixing their bayonets 'for the charge, "Get your pork stickers ready, boys, for we're going to do 'em up to-night!" And how the boys grandly did 'em up is written on the pages of history. He also told how when the critical moment, when their supports, the French Algerians, broke and fled, the defence of the trenches was left with the Canadians against an overwhelming force of Germans, whom they repulsed with great slaughter. In those charges Capt Martin received a bayonet wound in the side, a bullet in his shoulder and another in his head. "We have the enemy licked on the Western front," declared Capt. Martin. "The Allies can pierce the enemy's lines in three different places," continued the speaker but by waiting their time, it is said, so many lives would not be sacrificed.

Before closing his address, he asked for volunteers to finish up the recruiting for the 89th. Geo McKinney was the only volunteer that responded, amid great applause.

There is no doubt had a longer notice of the meeting had been given, the hall would have been full, and more volunteers offered. Messrs. THE U.S. INTERESTED IN THE SUCCESS OF THE ALLIES

GERMANY THREATENS EXISTENCE OF DEMOCRACY

Gifford Pinchot says that the Allies are fighting to uphold the Highest American Ideals, and the U. S. Should Hamper Them as Little as Possible in the Conduct of the War

Gifford Pinchot, in an address at the Aldine Club, New York, answered his own question: "But in our own interest and to satisfy our sense of justice, what do we in the United States most desire as the outcome of the war?" by saying:

"Victory for the allies, of course." Mr. Pinchot discussed the disturbance of foreign trade and the inconvenience to certain classes of Americans as business men, and this led up to his question as to the wise position for the United States to take in the matter. Answering the question: "Why?" Mr. Pinchot said:

"First of all, because this is really our war; that is to say, the principles for which it is being fought are principles for which we have no alternative stands, and which we are interested in having prevail in the world at large. It is to our interest as a people not to have frontier regions overrun by scraps of paper; not to have decency and humanity disregarded in methods of warfare; not to have mankind the ascendant and democracy crushed."

"If the allies win, there is no trouble in sight for the United States. We in America may then proceed undisturbed from within ourselves to our own problems in our own way. If the allies win, there is no trouble in sight for the United States. We in America may then proceed undisturbed from within ourselves to our own problems in our own way. "Seasonable Hints" For the Farmers During Winter

"The real test of the farmer is, perhaps, in his ability to make the most profitable use of the various products of his farm and to have them ready in every way practicable between harvest and seed time for the productive operations of the next season." Thus states Mr. J. H. Grisde, director, Dominion Experimental Farms, in presenting the Seasonable Hints, No. 3, for November, December, January and February, to the farming public of Canada. The purpose of this series of hints is to present to the farmer a compendium of information, which outlines many necessary farm tasks for the winter months. The hints, No. 3, is available at the department of agriculture, Ottawa, Ont.

"Good-Bye, Little Cabin"

Relic Hunters Tear up Cabin of the Past

Word has come to hand that while Robert W. Service has been playing handball with death by throwing bombs in Flinders' house, the relic hunters have practically torn his cabin in pieces and cut up the logs for souvenirs. The museum has been over his door has shared a similar fate.

All of this is very expediting to many northerners, who have a high regard for "Bob" Service, not because he has won fame in the literary world, but because of his many many attributes. Northerners also have a sentimental regard for Service's cabin.

The northern people love this cabin as they love "Bob" Service. Service is a quiet, dignified man—yet one who always did his share and more of the work on the trail. He never was too tired to do the thousand chores around a camp in winter.

When he made the last march from Flinders to the mouth of the Mackenzie river, and thence across the journey that occupied a year and a half in the wilderness, Service bore more than his share of the hardship and agony of the journey.

Inside of the cabin are a number of inscriptions and notices written by Service when he was struggling for recognition which later came to him. The raspberry bushes and flowers which Service planted are still in the yard.

Empire Bettered by War

The die was cast a year ago. Neither the nation nor the empire regrets it, as Sir Robert Borden declared in words eloquent and significant. As a new year of war opens we can already see on the horizon unmistakable signs of the future. Deliverance from a carefully organized conspiracy against civilization and all it represents for the human family. We also realize, in the words of the Canadian prime minister, that the empire is being won for and two are better worth dying for than it was a year ago.—London Daily Telegraph.

Temporal Powers Of The Papacy

This is German Bait to Ensure Sympathy of the Roman Catholics

The restoration of the temporal power of the papacy is the latest bait offered by the Germans to enlist sympathy of the Roman Catholic cause. According to a Swiss correspondent of the Standard, Prince von Buelow's visit to Switzerland was connected with a scheme for the restoration of papal sovereignty over the states which would serve both as revenge upon Italy for her so-called perfidy to her former allies of the Triple Alliance, and would conciliate Roman Catholics throughout the world.

Although the Kaiser and his advisers are Lutherans, the German press is running a campaign, inspired by the pope's speech, to make it necessary that should enjoy absolute freedom and sovereign independence.

The interest is made that if Italy should prove reasonable, Germany will abandon the idea of making Rome the capital of a reconstructed papal state, but if met by refusal, Germany would insist the supreme humiliation of establishing the seat of the pope as a sovereign in the capital of the Italian nation.

Coal Output is Affected

Recruiting Among Canadian Miners Impairing Supply of Fuel

That the recruiting among the coal miners of Nova Scotia is seriously impairing the coal output of the mines and may have a serious effect also upon the manufacture of munitions, is the claim of P. W. Gray of the Dominion Coal Co., which has been brought to the attention of the authorities.

Mr. Gray claims that up to June last 1,770 men had been recruited from the mines of Nova Scotia, or about 14 per cent. of the men employed in the mines. By this time he estimates the proportion at 20 per cent. The Dominion Coal Co. alone has lost 1,200 men in the last six months, or 14 per cent. of its total employees. The result, he declares, has been a decrease of 17 per cent. in the coal output.

With regard to the campaign of the militia department to secure mines and sappers in Nova Scotia for overseas service, Mr. Gray claims that these men are being recruited from the province, which region is a rich source of men for the mines. The scarcity of coal due to the decrease in the employees, he claims, must have a serious effect on the munition output. It is simply a choice between men and munitions," he declares.

The One Complete Success

The British army is the one instrument, on either side of conflict, which has performed its work with complete and unchallengeable success. It has broken, as by a sudden hammer-blow, the whole of Germany that lived upon and trafficked in deep waters. It has rendered the German high sea fleet as innocuous in its hiding place as the German submarine fleet. It has thrown the German air force into confusion and slowly but surely, without ostentation or boasting, like the slaying of the darkness by an unguessed hand, it has laid its grip on the throat of Germany, never henceforth to be shaken until it comes. She victim may struggle, lash out with hands and feet, wince in agony, and in its struggles damage all surrounding things; but despite the struggles the grip will remain secure, the pressure will increase and intensify. And it is all dependent on some tiny regiments of ships and men "somewhere in the British Isles."—The Nation, London.

Announcement that radium is being produced by the United States government at one-third its former cost was made by Secretary of the Interior. The Bureau of Mines, according to the secretary's statement, has produced five grams at a cost of $37,000 per gram, in comparison with a selling price of $100,000 to $150,000 per gram, which has prevailed for the past few years.

A motorist, who was touring in Ireland one day met a native who was driving a donkey and cart. Thinking he would like to have a little fun at the Irishman's expense, he began to talk to him in English. France After War Graters

People Who Profit Unduly From Needs of the Nation Are Punished

A vigorous campaign undertaken by the French government to punish persons who have profited unduly from the needs of the nation is under way. A Supply Corps officer named Parent and his soldier clerk have been sentenced by a court martial to five years in prison and fines of 1,500 francs ($300) for accepting bribes from contractors on purchases of supplies amounting to more than 6,000,000 francs ($1,200,000). A businessman, who had been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment and a heavy fine. Three other business men convicted of similar charges have been sentenced to prison.

60 B.C. Surveyors Have Joined Colors

That 60 British Columbia surveyors have joined the colors is an interesting announcement made by Mr. G. H. Dawson, the surveyor-general. Of these, 40 have fallen in action, for they have been wounded. Two are in Germany and thirty-nine either are serving at the front, waiting instructions, or are at Shorncliffe to provide the continent, or training in British Columbia. Victoria's total contribution is twenty-two men, including given their lives for their country—namely, Captain J. H. McGregor and Lieut. B. R. Colbourne. Two are prisoners, Lieut. R. D. Gillespie and Pte. J. M. Milligan.

Thrilling Adventures Of English Woman

Her Escape From Belgium Was Effected by Disguise

Mrs. Malcolm Carter, an English woman, who arrived in New York recently, told her friends the story of how she escaped from Belgium by disguising herself in the costume of a Flemish peasant, and creeping under the barbed wires on the Dutch frontier. Mrs. Carter came to seek aid for Belgian soldiers who have been blinded or permanently disabled.

She went from London to Belgium to visit her father, and says that her passport was taken away and torn up on the orders of General Von Bissing, the military commander. She was suspected of being a spy, but after two months obtained a new pass from another German commander, but that also was confiscated.

Realizing that her only means of escape was by subterfuge, she went to the home of a friend in Antwerp and emerged from the house in disguise. She was carried in the cart of a Belgian cheese-maker part of the way to the Dutch border and smugglers guided her the remainder of the way.

"There were times," said Mrs. Carter, when I was in a real sweat on the ground, and it was eleven hours before we reached the barbed wire that we had to seek aid for Belgian soldiers who have been blinded or permanently disabled.

Value of Wireless

Is Proving a Great Life-Saver in Connection with Accidents at Sea

During the fiscal year of 1915 the inspectors of the radio bureau at Washington reported 25 cases of vessels leaving United States ports without a radio apparatus, or without the use of wireless to summon assistance. Four of these cases were due to fire, twelve to running ashore, stranding or getting into an ice jam, three to breakage of machinery, four to collisions, one to shifting cargo, one to vessel being battered and waterlogged, and one to being torpedoed.

Except in the case of the Lusitania, which was torpedoed, the assistance was rendered in all but one case by wireless helped to save a number of lives.

On September 15, the Paque liner Santa Anna, bound from New York to Naples with 1,700, caught fire in mid-ocean. All the passengers and crew were saved. The S.O.S. call brought the Italian steamer Ancona to her aid, 600 passengers were saved, and the burning vessel was escorted to the Azores.

Six days later the Greek liner Athina, bound from New York to Piræus and Saloniki, caught fire 600 miles off Sandy Hook, with 170 passengers and crew on board, and had to be abandoned. The Anchor liner Tuscany responded to the S.O.S. call and took off 24 passengers in lifeboats, and the remainder were brought to New York on the freighter Roumanian Prince.

The inspectors of the radio bureau stated that the report of the Athina showed conclusively that many persons might have been lost and the cause of the loss of the steamer never known. If the vessel had not been equipped with wireless apparatus.—New York Times.

British Women Busy

Since the war began to drain Britain of men so heavily the number of women workers has increased.

There are now 50,000 women clerks employed in London, against 35,000 in 1912. The increase in other cities is in proportion.

Before the war began there were 1,000,000 more women than men in Britain.

Thinking he would like to have a little fun at the Irishman's expense, he began to talk to him in English. The Irishman replied, "Sure, the donkey's in the shafts in the great, and on the seat in the other."

British and Canadian Arm Will Be Discussed in Parliament

It is understood that all the facts in regard to the Ross rifle will be placed before parliament next session. There have been varying stories in respect to the Canadian arm, some of them favorable and some very unfavorable. The subject has been referred to by experts and discussed in the British house, when it was announced that a committee of inquiry had been appointed. "This is how I am informed. This report has never seen the light of day," said a member of the House of Commons. "The full facts may be known, it is expected that all papers will be laid before parliament and that only the working of the Ross rifle but the British arm as well will be dealt with."

MAKING FARM WORK INTERESTING BY MEDIUM OF JUNIOR FAIRS

CHECKING DEPOPULATION OF RURAL DISTRICTS

One of the Best Ways to Further the Progressive Agriculture Movements is to Interest the Boys and Girls in the Work Through Holding Annual Fall Competitions

The Junior Fall Fair as it is being carried on Saskatchewan, was first inaugurated by the district representative in Ontario and the county agent of the United States.

In Ontario the Junior Fall Fair is known as the Rural School Fair. In the United States it has taken the form of societies, such as "The Corn Club Boys," "The Canning Girls," "The Bee Bee Girls," etc.

In Saskatchewan the department of agriculture and the department of rural extension are co-operating in the object aimed at in holding these fairs is twofold. In the first place the children are given an opportunity to be embodied in the work. And, secondly, the Junior Fall Fair has been held for the purpose of checking the depopulation of rural districts by the farming public and the department together that they may be interested in progressive agriculture.

The following is a brief outline of the work:

During the spring months the agricultural secretary visits the teacher and children for the work in connection with the fair.

The general details are as follows: The boys and girls of each school nominate their list of number to act as directors on the Junior Fall Fair board. After the nominations have been concluded a meeting is held at some central point for the purpose of electing a president and secretary (treasurer).

All the business and management in connection with the fair is arranged by the board of directors.

When the material supplied by the department is given out in the spring a complete list is kept of the pupils receiving the same, thus when the Junior Fall Fair takes place all products are accounted for.

The secretary-treasurer is a busy person. He is in charge of the fair, and he will allow his or her visiting, with the agricultural secretary, by the children, and the fair during the summer. This makes it possible for the secretary-treasurer to report to the directors, who, in co-operation with the school teachers and agricultural secretary, prepare the program for the fair.

This co-operation of the board of directors, school teachers and agricultural secretary creates a greater interest among the boys and girls in the fair. The school children carry on the work on plots at home. These plots are of various sizes, from one to one acre, which makes the work of comparison more simple. All seed

Geography in Germany

Bavarian Children Are Taught Some "Queer" Facts

The school authorities in Bavaria have published notes on war geography for the children attending the public schools. The following information is given: "Russia is a vast territory already occupied by the Germans is four times as extensive as the Kingdom of Bavaria, but is only one-twentieth of the entire Russian empire. But the greater part of Russia is thinly populated, and the most fertile districts are already in German possession, so that Russia can now support only seven million of her former population."

"At the beginning of the war, Russia had fifty million more inhabitants than Germany. Austria-Hungary combined, namely, 370 millions against 120 millions. After a year of warfare this position had been reversed: Russia now has only 145 millions, whereas the Central Monarchies rule over 156 millions."

The new territory occupied in east and west as an extensive as the entire Kingdom of Prussia.

grain, garden seeds and tubers are supplied by the department of agriculture. Eggs are also supplied for hatching purposes. Only pure strains are supplied thus making the children familiar with the better side of farming.

The agricultural secretary visits the plots of each boy and girl during the summer, scores them, and makes suggestions. In a practical nature where the occasion warrants. This is the key to the lasting effects of the fall fair work.

The fair is held some time during the months of September and October, as suits the district in which it is to take place. The rules and regulations are the same as any agricultural society fair, and all prize money is paid by cheque, arranged in the form made at the local banks or cashing of the same.

The benefits derived from school fair work:

1. Rural depopulation is checked. The children whose early impressions are lasting have not a craving for other lines of work when farming is made to be attractive.
2. A community interest is created. The rural education is improved, which means much towards elevation.
3. Children are interested in progressive agriculture. When they become interested it is much easier to interest the parents.

(a) The training received by the boys and girls who are put on a firmer footing. The boys and girls of today are the men and women of tomorrow.

(b) Agriculture and other lines of education are placed on a firm, practical basis. The children are made to see the future of Saskatchewan depends to a great extent on how well both are carried out.

Prize money is contributed by the municipal councils, school trustees and individuals interested in the junior fall work.

An objection has been raised to giving cash prizes, but it is through the interest of the children who do not compete for the monetary value of the prize, but for the educative value and prestige.

Such an article better than other pupils produce. All money should be used for the benefit of the children. The line elevators companies with headquarters in Winnipeg have donated country elevators in Saskatchewan. They are donating a scholarship of $100 to the child who wins the highest score in competitions. Competitions at the annual junior fall fair are held on the 14th and 15th years are eligible to compete for this scholarship.

Brave Serbia

A Little Nation That is Pluckily Fighting Against Overwhelming Odds

May one be permitted, without laying blame upon a charge of unpopularity, to say a word for Serbia? The football of war, the pretext for the world conflict that has won stubbornly holding back the Austro-German army, and is menaced by the flank attacks of Miger Bulgarians.

For a long time the Serbian and children are fighting side by side with their men. Serbia, a tiny nation before the war, is now a small but still pluckily fighting, in the last extremity, for its life.

An Austrian archduke was murdered in Serbia. Austria, as one of the products of an attempt to hold a people in oppression against her will, was not intended to be satisfied, and sent an ultimatum that could not be complied with and that was not intended to be complied with. Though Serbia went unimaginedly far in meeting this cruel demand, still Austria refused to be satisfied and touched the match to the train of powder leading to the mine that blew up Europe.

Doubtless thousands of peasants that have died were worth more to humanity than the archduke whose assassination was made the pretext for war.

Serbia has thirty-four thousand square miles of territory, an area as large as North Dakota. Its population before the war was four million six hundred thousand. Serbia is a land of that Minnesota and Wisconsin combined. Two-thirds of its boundary is on the coast of the Adriatic. Almost one-third of its territory is almost "neutral" neighbors. Only tiny Montenegro is its friend.

A nation, small but brave, surrounded by hostile giants, is close to extinction, though its women and children are fighting side by side with its men.

Surely one may be permitted to feel sorry for Serbia. It is a nation, whether permitted to or not, one does—one must.—Dunith Herald.

A Home Warning

They are saying in France that the Ancona victims are the result of the plan to place a submarine in the Adriatic for the Lusitania. That is a bitter reproach to rest upon the government of the United States. It is a fact that will be still greater, however, if it remains dead to warnings regarding hostile action within the country. It is a fact that will be still greater, however, if it remains dead to warnings regarding hostile action within the country. It is a fact that will be still greater, however, if it remains dead to warnings regarding hostile action within the country.

Christmas Tree

A very enjoyable time was spent at Cereal on Christmas eve by the youngsters and their parents, when they met at Bussard's hall, and were visited by Santa Claus. A beautiful Xmas tree was there, prettily decorated and laden with presents for young and old.

Games and music were soon in full swing, and were joined in heartily. Great excitement prevailed among the children when they heard the sound of the bells.
"Santa Claus was coming!" He soon appeared, and after an interesting little talk he distributed the gifts, every child present receiving a Xmas stocking full of goodies and a bag of popcorn and fruit, and other presents that had been given them by kind friends. The part of Santa Claus was very ably taken by Mr. Holden, and great was the disappointment of the children when it was time for Father Xmas to depart.

Music was interspersed with games and the programme was as follows:

Song, "Mother Machree" Mr.
Neville White
Song, "Killarney," Miss Taylor
Recitation, "The Convict's Xmas
Eve," Mr. Milloy
Dog Duet, "Rule Britannia," Spot
and his mother
Violin Solo, "Serenata" Mr. Holden
Song, "Tom of Dewco" Mr.

Recitation, "When Father Carved

Song, "To-morrow will do" Mrs.

Accompaniments by Miss F.

Thanks are due to Mr. Bussard who so kindly lent the hall for the occasion, Mrs. Cottrell for organizing the tree, Rev. D. Simpson, musical programme, Mr and Mrs.

Holden, Madames Bussard, Simpson, McCutchen, Blaney, Elford, house for their kind help.

During the evening the announcement was made that the Victorian Order Nurse, Miss
Davies, would arrive on Dec. 30th, and a collection was taken up for the cause which amounted to $12

American Who Learn That a Title Is Quite Expensive

Photos by American Press Association.

1.—Countess of Suffolk. 2.—Mrs. Lewis Harcourt. 3.—Duchess of Marlborough. 4.—Countess of Granard. 5.—Mrs. William B. Leeds. 6.—Countess of Ancaster. 7.—Lady Beatty. 8.—Duchess of Roxburghe.

MANY, very many extremely wealthy American beauties have permanently expatriated themselves by marrying British noblemen and making their homes in England. Now these millionaires are forced to part with one-third of their incomes on the war altar. For this is the British income tax since the war has brought on the financial crisis.

Many of them found that America was too crude and too rude for them. They wanted to live in ancient castles and manor houses and have obsequious, highly trained servants to wait upon them. They wanted many things they thought they could find in Europe and not in America. They have found it quite expensive.

The pursuit of pleasure was in general their highest aim. They threw themselves into it with their whole souls and whole incomes. The Americans in fashionable English society have long been noted as forming the gayest, most brilliant and most extravagant element.

Some have paid even more than war taxes. In many cases cruel death has taken husbands, children or relatives acquired by marriage.

Instead of enjoying the pleasures and gayeties of a luxurious society they are living amid scenes of mourning and gloom. Their homes have in many cases been turned into hospitals. The young men of their acquaintances have perished on the battle front by scores, for the war has fallen most severely on the class which these American expatriates have joined.

Had they stayed at home in America they would have found their incomes lightly taxed. They would have had family and friends not decimated by slaughter.

The income tax is graduated, increasing with the size of the income, a principle already established. Under the new budget it is increased to such a point that incomes above $100,000 a year will pay 34 1/2 per cent, or more than one-third of the total amount.

Further increase to come.

Great as was this increase in taxation, Englishmen must not suppose it was the last increase that would be required before the war was over.

Americans and all foreigners living in England are subject to the income tax if they maintain permanent residences there, whether they are British subjects or not.

It has been roughly estimated that these Americans will contribute about a billion dollars to the British war chest under the new income tax.

A few of the principal American payers of British income tax, with the amounts they will pay, approximated, are as follows:

William Waldorf Astor, $1,250,000.

The Duchess of Marlborough, daughter of William K. Vanderbilt of New York, $150,000.

The Duchess of Roxburghe, daughter of the late Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati, $100,000.

Mrs. William B. Leeds, $200,000.

Lady Beatty, wife of Admiral Beatty, $200,000.

The Countess of Granard, daughter of Ogden Mills of New York, $100,000.

Viscountess Maldston, daughter of Anthony Drexel, $100,000.

Cursons to Pay $200,000.

The Ladies Curzon, granddaughters of Levi Z. Letter, $200,000.

The Countess of Craven, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin, $200,000.

Viscountess Deorhurst, daughter of John W. Bonnyer, $50,000.

Countess of Suffolk, daughter of Levi Z. Letter, $100,000.

Lady Naylor Leyland, formerly Miss Jennie Chamberlain, $50,000.

Countess of Ancaster, formerly Miss Elsie Bress, $75,000.

Lady Chylesmore, daughter of F. O. French of New York, $50,000.

Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, niece of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, $100,000.

These, of course, are only a few of the more conspicuous cases. There are upward of a hundred American women of great wealth who have married Englishmen of title. They do not all come in the class of those who must pay the maximum tax of one-third of their incomes, but all of them must pay very heavily. Practically none will pay less than 15 per cent, the rate that falls on those who have over $10,000 a year.

Lady Beatty, wife of Admiral.

The position of some of the Americans in England will doubtless excite general sympathy in this country.

Lady Beatty, a beautiful and brilliant Chicago girl, is married to Admiral Sir David Beatty, the most distinguished figure in the British navy in the war.

He has twice defeated the German fleet on the only two occasions when it ventured in force into the North sea.

Lady Beatty has always spent her money most liberally in providing comforts and entertainments for the sailors in Admiral Beatty's command.

Now, while her husband is risking his life and winning battles for his country, she is compelled to hand over to the British government one-third of her income.

The Countess of Granard, who was Miss Beatrice Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills and granddaughter of the late multimillionaire, D. O. Mills, is one of the conspicuous contributors to the British war chest.

Her husband has gone to the front with a regiment and has, perhaps, been in action before now.

Her cousin, the Hon. Mrs. John Herbert Ward, was also a granddaughter and heiress of D. O. Mills. Mrs. Ward's husband is also at the front.

Marlboroughs Now Estranged.

The Duchess of Marlborough is in the peculiar position of paying a large tax because she married an Englishman, from whom she is estranged.

Nevertheless, there is every reason to believe that the duchess is satisfied to be a member of English society, although she can hardly enjoy the income tax.

Lady Naylor Leyland, who was the beautiful Jennie Chamberlain of Cincinnati and enjoyed for many years the esteem and personal friendship of the late King Edward. She has had the sorrow of losing in the war her son, Sir Albert Edward Naylor-Leyland, named after the king. But she must continue to pay her income tax to the war monster.

Mrs. Leeds Prefers Freedom.

No one has enjoyed the delights of European social life more thoroughly than the beautiful Mrs. William B. Leeds, who inherited an enormous fortune from her late husband, accumulated in Rock Island ventures and the "tin plate trust." Mrs. Leeds has been sought in marriage by the most attractive and eligible princes and noblemen in Europe.

Apparently she enjoyed the society of all of them, but she has obstinately preferred freedom and admiration to the possession of a title. She has been aptly called "the merry widow." She has "millions and modesty," as one English admirer summed up her character. Now the terrible war, with its crushing tax, has come to jar the serenity of her socially ideal existence.

Emperor of Japan Member of Family That Has Ruled That Country For Seventy-five Generations

Photos by American Press Association.

Emperor and Empress of Japan and Young Girls Who Grew the Sacred Rice Served at Feast.

THE enthronement ceremonies marking the formal accession of an emperor to the throne of Japan to be appreciated must be grasped in their entirety. It is not merely that of a mikado, direct human descendant of an unbroken line of seventy-five generations of rulers stretching back to the mists of history and beyond, but something to the Japanese mind infinitely greater, for in the far mystic realm of eternal gods sunshine—the world of the sages gods mastering the mountains and fringing the seas of the island Empire of the Rising Sun. And from that natal day of the sun begotten race the Japanese behold the first generation pass from the working world to the world invisible, each soul becoming one of the great ghostly company of the gods. From generation to generation it proceeds down twenty-five centuries to this very day. Side by side along the centuries he sees a living god upon the throne and a living, godlike people, one

In spirit, one in heart, until now, 70,000,000 strong; they are halting the imperial advent of Yoshitomo, great brother linked to them all through the flesh of the world and the aura of the gods.

When the Japanese shouts "Banzai" and holds his lighted lantern aloft, wishing the new mikado 10,000 years of glory, it is not mere loyalty; it is love expressed in the magic terms of the race that has come from the loins of the Goddess of the Sun. Natural and easy as it all seems to the humblest or the proudest Japanese, it is to the modern miracle of a robust modern nation throbbing to a single heart beat from the prehistoric world of gods and heroes amid the primal forces and elemental beginning of the world. Goodhood, chieftainship, brotherhood, mystic soul union, combine in the investiture of Yoshitomo in the eyes of all the children of Nippon.

But the homelier glory, a more humanly touching thing, is the second phase of the accession to the throne.

In the first—Sokui—the enthronement, it is the divine ruler. In the second—Daijosi—it is the great pastor, the supreme husbandman, who reverences the fruitful soil whence spring the rice and millet on which the millions live, from year to year. He eats of the sacred rice, and offerings of products of shore and sea are there before him. Gold and silk, lacquer and embroidery, shining weapons, stately banners, gorgeous vestments and flashing uniforms glow and coruscate around the enthronement, but all is plain and simple, primeval almost, in the Daijosi—the blessing of the harvest, tasting of the rice—for which the millions toil and from which the millions gather muscle and brain to uphold the glory of Japan.

Sixteen Heroes Missing

Secretary Redfield is engaged in a quest for sixteen modest heroes.

They were part of the crew of the American steamship Kronland of the Red Star line, which in October, 1912, went to the assistance of the burning steamship Valtorno in the north Atlantic ocean.

The crew rescued eighty-nine persons, in many instances at the risk of their own lives. For their gallant work congress voted its thanks and authorized medals for the crew and a gold watch for Captain Paul H. Kreibohm, when it came time for the presentation, many of the men could not be located. One since has been found in London, another with the Belgian army.
